

Please do not replace the current Wisconsin No Call law. I do not want banks to be allowed to telemarket me after cancellation of services. If I have ended services with a bank, I had my reasons, and do not wish to have my privacy, my home invaded with their calls. If I want any services from any company, I will call them. They have other forms of advertising available to them; no one should ever be able to call me to try and sell me something I did not ask to hear about. Personally, I wish the law were even stronger. I wish I didn't have to put up with "survey" calls either, or calls from my phone company, or credit card company trying to sell me services that I do not want. They can use the papers, radio, tv, or mail. Just don't call me. It's invasive advertising.

Thank you,
Nan Lauersdorf